

I am divorced. Can I appoint guardians for my minor children thereby excluding my former spouse?

No. The natural parent will, until removed as guardian by the Court or until formally renouncing the guardianship, always remain the automatic and natural guardian of the child irrespective of what the will stipulates. It is, however, important to despite this nominate a guardian for in case the natural parent might be predeceased.

You can download a will instruction sheet, fill it in and email it to us: Testament Instruksievel / Will Instruction Sheet