Where the seller is registered for VAT and the property sold is part of his VAT enterprise, the transaction will a VAT transaction.

The transaction will, however, be zero-rated (in other words no VAT has to be paid) if the following requirements are met:

1. Both the seller and the purchaser are registered for VAT.
2. The property is sold as a going concern that is capable of separate operation and as an income-earning activity, both of which must be stipulated as such in the agreement.

If the transaction does not comply with 2 above but with 1 above, the purchaser can, as a general rule, claim back the VAT with his next return.

Where the seller is not registered for VAT, Transfer Duty would be payable.
